The Millennium Goals and Their Relation to the U.N.

The U.N. Millennium Goals are essentially the main problems that the U.N. strives to eradicate. They represent all that the U.N. wants to accomplish and are the central developmental issues that are necessary to address.

“The eight Millennium Development Goals (MDGs) – which range from halving extreme poverty to halting the spread of HIV/AIDS and providing universal primary education, all by the target date of 2015 – form a blueprint agreed to by all the world’s countries and all the world’s leading development institutions.” (UN.org)
